Paul West, Bass Player and Much, Much More

Paul West plays the bass—and has been the executive director of the Jazzmobile (1969–1973) and director of the Henry Street Settlement Music School (1973–2000). He is an educator and conductor as well as a performer.

A native New Yorker, he attended the High School of Music and Art (now part of LaGuardia High School). While a student there, he was the student conductor of the Senior Symphony Orchestra.

Since then he has conducted, arranged, composed and managed classical music as well as jazz. He has worked on Broadway, in television, and in cinema.

Paul West has a great deal to say about the world of music, its various genres, and the many ways he has participated in the world of music.

Join us at our February 15 meeting to hear an extraordinary man give us his view of the music world, especially the world of jazz. As usual at our meetings, his talk will be illustrated with music.

Save the date April 20 for our Annual Concert.

More information to come.
